HEROES' LESSONS

- Knowledge and information is like light in the darkness. It helps you see things clearly, exposing the truth.
- A Good Father knows that good information can come from listening to other's, including his wife and educated daughter.
- Fear can be our worst enemy. If we stay alert, speak up, and get help, then we can keep our village safe!
- You must be bold, and speak out and get help when you think something might be wrong! Good people can be hurt by bad things if we stay silent.
- Bad people can come disguised as good, nice, successful people to take girls to the city. In the city these girls are not treated well, they are abused!
- Keeping a Safe Village safe requires everyone to be a hero.
- Everyone can do something. YOU can be a hero! Be on Red Alert!

REAL EXPERIENCES OF TRAFFICKING

BHAVANI'S STORY

Bhavani was born in a poor family in Pileru, Chittoor District of Andhra Pradesh. Instead of going to school, Bhavani worked with her parents, who were landless laborers. In her family there were 11 people; 6 sisters and 3 brothers.

One day when Bhavani was only 12 years old, her aunty insisted that she get married to a man named Amar who worked in Delhi. Her parents agreed. "Even though I was young, I felt very happy to get married as they gave my parents lot of money and took care of the marriage expenses." After the marriage, Bhavani, Amar and the aunty left for Delhi.

When she reached New Delhi Railway Station, Amar asked Bhavani to stay with her cousin until he made arrangements for family accommodation. Her cousin's house turned out to be a brothel on G B Road the red light area in New Delhi. This is when Bhavani realized she and her family had been fooled, and by her own aunty! Bhavani's nightmare began the very next day when she was forced to be abused by a strange man who was a customer of the brothel. She then came to know that she had been sold by her aunty to this brothel for a sum of Rs.45,000/-.

Speaking to other girls at the brothel she realized that her 'husband' had "married" 12 times in that 1 year, fooling 12 other girls and their families! When Bhavani tried to fight the abuse and say no to the bad men in the brothel, she was beaten and starved. After 7 days of struggle Bhavani could not fight any longer. Every day since then, she has been raped by over 20 men a day.

After five abortions and too many sicknesses to count, Bhavani died at the age of 17 years from HIV.

Every 10 minutes
a girl gets sold into the Indian flesh trade.

A girl in a Indian brothel is raped 20 times
or more in a day.

Only
1% of the girls
are rescued.

The average age of a trafficked child in India is 12 years old,
with some as young as 7.

This project is the the result of over 18 months of rigorous in field and partnership-based research including the commissioning of first-of-it's-kind research by the “behavioral architects™” of Final Mile on the compulsions of male decision making on both the demand and supply side of the trafficking of girls and women. This Comic booklet is the “leave behind” portion of a Training Toolkit designed to educate all stake holders in rural areas to effectively prevent the trafficking of girls and women for sexual exploitation.

The Toolkit will be delivered in villages through 2-day trainings in partnership with My Hope.
